FLOPPY DISK NOTE PAD

From the early 1980's, the 3.5" disk competed with the 5.25" disks and eventually replaced them by the late 80's. The 3.5" disks don't fit in the old 5.25" drives, but of course there are still called floppies. However, some refer to the 3.5" drives as "flopies".

By 2002, USB sticks started to become widely used and can now hold the content of over 5,000 floppy disks - thus making these 3.5" Floppies obsolete.
