The image shows a close-up of a large-scale mural. The central focus is the word "NEW YORK" written vertically in white, bold, sans-serif capital letters. Behind the letters, the words "ESTATE" and "ART" are visible, partially obscured by the letters and the surrounding artwork. The background is a dynamic composition of overlapping geometric shapes in shades of yellow, red, blue, and pink. The style is characteristic of street art, with thick outlines and a high-contrast color palette.

A large, stylized graphic of the Korean word "한국" (Korea) is the central focus. The letters are composed of white and dark blue paper cutouts, arranged in a layered, overlapping manner. The graphic is set against a warm, golden-yellow background. In the background, there are various art supplies scattered around, including a blue and white spiral object, a white egg, a paintbrush, a small white vase, and a container with a brush. The overall composition has a hand-made, artistic feel.
