CHAPTER 1

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED GENESIS

1 In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 And God said, Let there be light upon the earth: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

9 And God said, Let the heaven be gathered together, and let the dry land appear:

10 And God called together the gathering together of the waters, and God called the dry land Earth, and the gathering together of the waters he called the Seas: and God saw that it was good.

11 And God saw that it was good, and God divided the light from the darkness,
and God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

12 And the earth brought forth herb yielding seed, and the tree yielding fruit, which is in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good, and the evening and the morning were the third day.
